What is EPR for Fire Extinguishers?

Under French law (Article L.541-10-1 of the Environmental Code), any company that manufactures, imports or distributes small fire extinguishers on the French market is legally required to provide for the end-of-life management of its products.

This “polluter pays” principle places responsibility on those who bring products to market, not on taxpayers or local authorities.

Benefits of joining ECOPAE

By joining, we manage for you:

- 1 Nationwide collection network
- 2 Logistics & transport organisation
- 3 Product depressurisation, material separation & recycling
- 4 Reporting to French authorities (ADEME, DGPR)
- 5 Consumer communication & awareness campaigns
- 6 Ensuring collection & recycling target are met

The eco-contribution is NOT a tax.

It is paid directly to ECOPAE by members and it is entirely used to fund collection and recycling, reducing the burden on local authorities and taxpayers.
